CROSBY S. NOVES......Editor. CUT ALMOST IN HALP. The Evening Star has a regular, permanent bona fide daily circulation more than treble that of any other daily paper published in Washington, and much greater than that of all the other daily papers here added

The Star Out of Town. Persons leaving the city for any length of time can have THE STAR mailed regularly to any address tegether.

All orders for the paper by mail must be accompanied by the money,—at the rate of fifteen A TUMBLE IN PRICES UNPRECEDENTED IN ITS cents a week, or fifty cents per month, unless sent to a foreign country, when the price, including postage, is 80 cents per month.

In another part of THE STAR is published an article showing the views of Sumner, Thurman and other distinguished ex-Senators and Senators upon the railroad occupation of the parks and streets of Washington. The objections to a surrender of bly presented, and the evils of the illegal practices of the roads in occupying streets and reservations without authority, and in using the streets for freight and storage purposes, thereby obstructing and throttling two sections of the city, are vividly pictured. Senator Thurman contended that the diversion by the government of a park to railroad uses is an act of bad faith towards the original owners of the soil of Washington, confirming THE STAR in its position upon this question. It is expected that the railroad bills will be discussed in the Senate next week. Washington hopes that the friends of the capital will characterize the injurious railroad dictatorship as it deserves, and that their just indignation may be more effective in the accomplishment of practical results than was the eloquence of a Sumner and a Thurman in

The proclamation to postmasters concerning the unmailable character of envelopes containing offensive matter written or printed on them is needed in a large class of cases. Two men, for example, have a dispute over an account, which remains unsettled in consequence. The one who considers himself a creditor goes to an agency. The agency, if it follows the course against which the proclamation is, in part, directed, first sends in controversy, enclosed in an envelope Agency" in heavy black letters on its face. If a portunities for buying." speedy response is not forthcoming another demand arrives, in a still more conspicuous envelope, containing the name of the agency and some phrase like "Second Notice to Delinquent Debtors." This demand encloses a third envelope, covered with references to "Bad Debts," "Dead Beats," "Black-legs," "Sneaks," "Frauds," etc., so couched as to come just outside of the pale of the libel law of the state where the agency is situated, but with the obnoxious words printed in type which catches every eye; and the alleged stock-taking on the 1st of July." debtor is warned that, if the claim is not paid in ten days, an envelope of this sort will the receipt of such mall matter at their homes would give them, men frequently yield to demands that in their judgment have no foundation in justice. The thoroughly illogical character of the whole business is manifest from the fact that none but a sensitive spirit is affected by this sort of treatment. A man who is really a debts and in blackmailing alleged debtors. There is a feeble consolation, during this unusually long and oppressive heated term, in the markets. thought that it cannot last forever; but we can all enjoy a great deal more comfort and avoid many dangers while it does last if we adapt our habits of life to the state of the thermometer. The very air we breathe is hot; the organs of the body reurging; but the cares and worries of existence continue just the same during the hottest as during the coolest weather. These conditions predispose men to injury from exposure, consistent with proper nourishment, and give fresh fruit a leading place in his dietary; go to bed early and get all the sleep he can before the heat, the light and the noise of a new day make thorough rest impossible; keep his mind in a calm and cheerful state, no matter what annoyances arise, by an exertion of the will; stay in the shade; dress in thin clothing, light-colored where that is practicable, and as free as may be from stiffness or pressure upon any part of the body; move slowly, even if he has to ask the temporary indulgence of those who wait upon his motions; and avoid the two extremes of persistent ice-water drinking and of stimulation with alcohol. By observing these precautions, there is no reason why anybody should suffer serious damage from the continuance of the heated term. It is inconvenient, but it need not be fatal, or even dangerous. Sustained by this reflection, and keeping cool in the orthodox manner suggested, one can pity with calm superiority the fretting and perspiring individual who utters without ceasing that great truth: "Whew! But isn't it hot!!"

One of the curious results of the reduction of the number of liquor saloons in Philadelphia under the new license law is the complaint made by the teamsters at the disappearance of the wooden watering-troughs formerly placed by so many publicans in front of their taproom doors, in order that the sight of the thirsty horse's enjoyment would inspire the driver to take something also. The benevolent societies have supplied the lack to some extent by the substitution of metal tanks; but these have the disadvantage of becoming warm under the sun's rays, so that horses will not keep its contents cool and attractive. It seems odd that a movement designed to promote the use of water as opposed to other forms of drink should | WE REMIND YOU SERIOUSLY result indirectly in cutting off the available supply from so many of a city's most eager and persistent water-drinkers-a class whose steady habits Landseer celebrated in his picture of the "Tem-

General Boulanger's political prospects have suffered another backset in the defeat of his friend and partisan associate, Paul Deroulade, in last Sunday's election in the Charente. But this does not mean that he has ceased to be a factor in French politics. This will not happen till his own or some other scheme for the revision of the constitution shall have been adopted. He has no idea of drawing out himself, and he can be driven out only by the production of some plan confessedly better or stronger than the one he has devised. Till then, he must be counted as an uncertain and disturbing element in every calculation.

Representative McKinley's appearance at the Chicago convention as a dark horse is not unexpected. Mr. McKiniey is credited with the largest share in the authorship of the platform; and there would be nothing illogical, certainly, in asking the man who formulated this statement of principles to offer himself as its exponent and administrator. But there is a strong sentiment that it will be impolitic to slight and pass over Senator Sherman in order to nominate another man from his state.

It is all very well to urge the candidates before the Chicago convention, and their friends, not to get excited; but it is folly to tell them, in this hot weather, to "keep cool." They probably wish they could, with all their hearts.

Col. Ingersoil, after his speech of yesterday, which considerably marred his prestige as a swayer of multitudes, can afford to divert his attention for a while from the mistakes of Moses to the miscalculation of Robert.
